PART OF TORSO FOUND IN LAKE

Cleveland Locates Part of Woman's Body;
Mystery Probed

CLEVELAND, May 5.—(UP)—A missing part of the torso of Cleveland's eighth decapitation murder victim—a woman—was found floating today in Lake Erie 10 weeks after discovery of the first.

Coroner S. S. Gerber said icy waters had preserved the grisly specimen since Feb. 23 when the first section was discovered.

The section found today was the lower portion of a female body, severed neatly at the leg joints and again in the middle of the stomach.

Police first had believed the flesh was part of a new victim of the "mad butcher" hunted in the bizarre deaths of five men and three women.

Dr. Reuben Strauss, morgue pathologist, compared the portion with the description of the previous section and announced they were of the same body.

The other portion of the woman's body was found on a bench only a few feet away.

The father, Frank Vidmar, 27, a lumberjack, was taken to Timmons hospital in Bedford, eight miles east of Manns Choice. Burned on the body and head, he was in a serious condition.

"I was awakened by an explosion and a burst of flames," Vidmar said. "I don't remember how I got out."

LOYALISTS FIGHT IN BARCELONA IN NEW CIVIL WAR

BY UNITED PRESS
An incipient revolt in Barcelona complicated the Spanish civil war today. Percolating through the drastic censorship came reports of hundreds of casualties in Spain's largest city as anarchist extremists fought with the more moderate, leftists which support the Catalan government.

Actual Catalan military aid to the Madrid government fighting the rightist insurgents has been lukewarm, but Valencia, temporary capital of the loyalists, feared that a civil war within a civil war would jeopardize future help from the Catalonians.

Border advances, however, indicated that the revolt had been checked and the Catalan government had the situation under control. Britain and France were concerned for the safety of their subjects and interests in Catalonia. Britain sent warships to stand by and the French consul was reported to have asked for the landing of marines to protect the consulate.

ROGERS DENIES QUARREL

Reports Spread That Lovers
Argue Over Residence

MONTS, France, May 5.—(UP)

Wedding plans and a marriage settlement were discussed at the Chateau De Cande today where the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson were reunited after their five months' separation.

It was understood that the duke was advised by telephone from London that the royal family agreed to provide a $500,000 marriage settlement for Mrs. Simpson, the income to be hers for life should anything happen to the duke.

The family agreed also, it was reported, that the duke could apply $75,000 a year to Mrs. Simpson's maintenance—to be taken from his inheritance from his great-grandmother Queen Victoria—in event that he should die.

Herman L. Rogers, spokesman for the duke and Mrs. Simpson, confirmed that there would be no announcement of the engagement to marry or of marriage plans until after the coronation of the duke's brother-in-law, King George VI, May 12.

May Stay Longer

He said that the duke would remain at the chateau for at least 10 days, and hinted that he would stay longer. This was in answer to reports that the duke might move to another chateau, on the other side of Tours, after a few days' visit here.

Asked if he had noticed an engagement ring which the duke was reported to have brought to Mrs. Simpson from Austria, Rogers said: "No, because she hasn't any."

Another report he characterized (Continued on Page Eight)

JURORS RELEASE CO-ED NAMED IN DEATH OF BABY

BOSTON, May 5.—(UP)—The Suffolk county grand jury, which had been asked to indict Miss Harriet Boyden, 18, of Marathon, N. Y., on a first-degree murder charge in the death of her newborn baby, today reported "no bill."

Six witnesses appeared before the grand jury yesterday.

Trego Released on Bond After 174 Days in Jail

Allen "Buck" Trego, Walnut street, was released from the county jail Wednesday morning after furnishing a bond to H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, to pay the balance of his fine and costs for violations of game laws.

Eveland received authority to release Trego under bond from Larry Woodell, state conservation officer. Members of the Pick-away Farmer's and Sportsman's association recently recommended Trego be released on condition he pay his account on monthly payments.

Trego was committed to jail last Nov. 12 under fines and costs amounting to $404.50. He has served 174 days. Bonds on 29 cases, at 80 cents each, amounted to $23.20. The balance due is $343.70. Arrangements were made for Trego to pay $5 a month. F. H. Fissell signed the bond. The fines were imposed for illegal possession of furs.

Denhardt Jury Begins Deliberations Again

Brigadier General Sleeps in Damp Jail Cell as Fate
Is Debated

NEW CASTLE, Ky., May 5.—(UP)

While Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt still slumbered in his damp jail cell, the jury trying him for the alleged murder of Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor arose and resumed deliberations today.

Judge Charles C. Marshall had instructed the jury of 11 sun-burned farmers and a tradesman shortly before midnight to return to their chambers at 9 a. m. But at daybreak they left their hotel lodgings and plodded through a downpour to the courtroom.

Verdict Not Indicated

After more than eight hours of deliberation there was no indication that they were any closer to the answer of what happened on the night of Nov. 6 when Mrs. Taylor, bluegrass beauty, died from a bullet fired from the general's .45 calibre revolver.

The jurors had deliberated five hours and five minutes when they decided to abandon their conference last night.

The littered room where they paced the floor, pounded a scarred table, and gestured in shirt sleeves over the exhibits which included even a small bottle containing a portion of the widow's body was lighted by two glaring electric light bulbs.

The bottle held what may be the crucial exhibit of the prosecution's case, for it showed the wound caused by the bullet which killed Mrs. Taylor.

Other Exhibits

Other exhibits showed the effect of test bullets fired into the carcass of two hogs used by defense and prosecution to determine whether the bullet was the same.

HOLLYWOOD, May 5.—(UP)

The Committee for Industrial Organization threw its support behind the strike of motion picture technicians today and promised to send steel, automobile and rubber workers into the picket lines around 10 major studios immediately.

John Brophy, national director for John L. Lewis, offered the support in a telegram that was read at a mass meeting of 2,000 striking members of the Federation of Motion Picture Crafts.

"Union workers, no matter what their affiliation, should support the studio strike," the message read.

The strikers are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, national rival of the C. I. O.

Violence Breaks Out

The development came while striking technicians were harassing the quarter-billion-dollar motion picture industry with business ent picket lines and inter-union brawls.

Both strikers and non-striking workmen were aroused after a raid on the headquarters of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees last night. Six men were carried to a hospital beaten, and several others were cut and bruised.

Strike leaders have charged the I.A.T.S.E., to which cameramen and projectionists belong, with furnishing (Continued on Page Eight)

DAVEY APPROVES LAW INCREASING COUNTY SALARIES

COLUMBUS, May 5.—(UP)—Governor Davey today signed the bill passed by the general assembly to raise the pay of county commissioners.

The bill fixes a minimum salary of $2,000 a year for all county commissioners, a maximum of $5,000 except in Cuyahoga where it may be as much as that of the county auditor, and generally steps up present salaries by changing the population quotas on which their pay is based. The increase does not affect present incumbents.

Other bills signed today by the governor included:

Abolishing the authority of the state civil service commission to fix educational qualifications as prerequisite for taking examinations for classified service jobs, except for technical positions with qualifications fixed by law.

Increasing from $100 to $250 the fee that courts may allow to assigned counsel in manslaughter cases.

Providing that bonds, notes and debentures issued by the federal housing administrator shall be acceptable as security for deposits of public funds.

Authorizing state officials, commissions and boards to consent to the issuance of refunding bonds by local supervisors, and waive interest on delinquent bonds.

LOCAL LEADERS MEET

J. I. Smith to Call Another Gathering Soon

Discussion concerning the approaching financial campaign and an appraisal of the work of the local district scout executive were the main items of interest in a meeting Tuesday evening of the Pickaway district Boy Scout committee, held in the New American Hotel. James I. Smith, Jr., is chairman of the county committee. Robert H. Heistand, scout executive of the Central Ohio Area Council, of which Pickaway county is a part, led the discussion. He related the procedures followed by other districts of the council in financing their share of the annual council budget and suggested plans that the local Scout leaders might follow here.

Mr. Smith announced another meeting would be called in the near future to adopt a plan. Sufficient representation was not present at the meeting Tuesday night to take definite action.

The local district committee is responsible for maintaining Scout work in Circleville and Pickaway county. This month each of the eight counties, including Pickaway will make an appeal for sustaining members to insure continuance of the Scout program and service from the council here.

ONE KILLED AS BOMB EXPLODES ON FAST TRAIN

MARSEILLES, May 5.—(UP)—A time bomb exploded aboard the Bordeaux-Marseilles express today, set fire to two passenger cars. Officials reported one person killed and four seriously injured.

The cars were detached and the train proceeded to Marseilles. It was believed that the bomb was timed to explode at Marseilles station, second busiest in France. But the train was two hours late and the bomb exploded as the train passed St. Martin De Crau, 42 miles north of Marseilles.

It is significant that for the last few years there has been no talk of giving the country back to the Indians.

Planting Now Under Way In Bloomfield District

Early History of Scioto Valley Railroad is Recalled

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Most every one who has corn to plant in the South Bloomfield territory in planting now, Ed. Ruff told us yesterday. This includes acres of potatoes, too.

Years ago the South Bloomfield countryside farms were noted for their fine watermelons, and broom-corn was raised as one of the staple crops. It is muskmelons now with but few watermelons and no broom corn at all.

It will be recalled by many of the older people, that when the survey was made for the then Scioto Valley railway in about 1874 or 1875, the route to be followed was through South Bloomfield, but such strenuous objections were met with that the road was located where it now is and known as the Norfolk & Western. The first depot here was located where the South grain elevator now stands. Alonzo Glick was the first station agent and telegraph operator. Our William H. Brobeck yet a resident of Ashville, was a student operator taught by this Mr. Glick. He later served with Moody Holliday. When Mr. Brobeck was fitted to conduct an office unassisted he was offered a place on the road, but at the same time Edward Hedges, who was operating what we call the South grain elevator, wanted him as a bookkeeper and made a better offer than the railroad would pay, so he went with Mr. Hedges. That ended his railroad. And you may be surprised to learn that the grade crossing at Main street, Ashville, is near twelve feet higher than when the old Scioto Valley passed over this crossing almost 60 years ago.

Ashville—Mrs. Squire Ill. Mrs. Florence Squire, widow of Doctor Squire, and mother of C. W. Squire and Mrs. Henry Snyder is reported in quite feeble health at her southern home in Sarasota, Florida.

Ashville—Another Barber Shop. There is some prospect of another barber shop in town in addition to three we already have. And while we are telling about a barber prospect, another outside party we are told, is hunting a location for some kind of mercantile business he hopes to engage in here. But it is all in the "embryonic" stage yet, and there may nothing develop from it.

Ashville—Curry Raising Poultry. George Curry, residing at the William Curry farm just over the line in Madison township, has raised a fine lot of Leghorns and among this flock of fowls are many cockerels of marketable size and weight. These are fattened and go to the Columbus restaurant trade at twenty-five cents a pound. The pullets they tell us will be kept and raised for the fall laying flock. And what is going on here with the Currys is general throughout the country districts.

Ashville—Health Run-Up. Mrs. Frank Foust in poor health and confined to her bed makes no improvement. Mrs. Timberman, sick for several weeks is not much better. Mrs. B. S. Custer, Madison township, who has been sick for several weeks and under the care of a nurse, is able to sit up a part of the time. Samuel Morrison, in his 90th year is reported in feeble health. He, with Mrs. Morrison reside at the "old home farm" in Walnut township. Ashville.

Ashville School News. William Martin, son of Prof. E. F. Martin, ranked third in the General Science test given at O. S. U. last Saturday. He was the only member of the Pickaway county team of 32 members to win any such recognition in this District Contest.

The Marionette show put on by Mrs. Michael last Friday night for the P.T.A. was unusually good. However, the attendance was not what it should have been.

We have been studying public speaking during our Sixth grade English class. Last Tuesday each member of the class gave a sales talk. Every article from Jergen's hand lotion to Eschelman's chicken feed was demonstrated before the class. We decided that the majority of the class made very good sales-people. The pupils were graded on their approach, choice of words, grammar and sincerity.

When our scholarship bank was counted last week Viola Ward and Frank Hinkle had the largest accounts. They were each awarded a small bank as their reward.

The Sixth Grade History club met last Tuesday morning. Glenn Malone was elected president for the rest of the year. Betty Brown will serve as secretary and Mary E. Wilkins as treasurer. We discussed the coronation of King George VI during our meeting. We hope to hear the ceremony over the radio.

In the county wide 8th grade test given recently, only three of Ashville's 20 pupils ranked below the county average, and the class as a whole ranked second in the county. Perry township being first.

Almost one half of our pupils have earned Reading Circle certificates, diplomas or seals this school year.

SOYBEAN PLOTS TO BE PLANTED AS EXPERIMENTS

Six experimental plots of soybeans will be planted within the next week on the Walters farm in Circleville township for a demonstration meeting to be held here Aug. 23.

F. K. Blair, county agent, announced Wednesday that the varieties to be planted will include Scioto, Illinois, Manchou, Mandell, Dunfield and Kingwa.

A soybean exhibit car is being prepared by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. for use in the corn belt states in connection with field meetings. This car will be in Ohio during the week of Aug. 23. Eight meetings are to be held in the state, all at places accessible to the railroad. The meeting will be held here in the morning.

Ashville—NEW CLUB FORMED. The "Up and Comin'" 4-H club of Scioto township organized Tuesday night naming the following officers: Harold Green, president; George Neal, vice president; Marvin Dounitz, secretary; Emerson Sheets, treasurer; Don Neal, recreation leader; and Dwight Haughn, reporter. C. V. Nell, Orient, Route 1, is advisor of the club. Livestock is the club project.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

When Lothar Mendes put down his megaphone after shooting the last scene in H. G. Wells' comedy, "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," he heaved a sigh that was heard 'round the studio. It wasn't a sigh of relief. It was a sigh of satisfaction. For in this brings Roland Young to the Cliftona Theatre tonight and Thursday. Mendes had directed his first comedy and licked the "type-casting" bugaboo that haunts not only film actors and actresses but directors as well.

AT THE GRAND

Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane appear in the starring roles in "Smart Blonde", the Grand theatre's current picture Wednesday and Thursday.

AT THE CIRCLE

"Sylvia Sidney is the greatest actress of her type on either stage or screen," commented William Pawley, screen actor, who appeared with the star in the Broadway play, "Bad Girl," which brought Miss Sidney into pictures. "Acting is a complete gift with her," said Pawley during the filming of Walter Wagner's Paramount drama, "Mary Burns, Fugitive," starring Miss Sidney, now showing at the Circle Theatre. The first time she ever appeared on the stage she was only fifteen, but she gave a perfect performance and has been doing it ever since."

OHIO FLOODING INDIANA AREA

Thousands of Acres of Land Inundated By Raging Stream

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 5.—(UP)—The Ohio river swirled over flood stage in the "pocket area" of southwestern Indiana today.

The river rose to 36.2 feet, nearly three over flood level, along its side of the triangular-shaped area formed by the Ohio, Wabash and White rivers. Hundreds of acres of fertile lowland were inundated. Union township farmers who fought with CCC workers for days to hoist earthen breastworks atop the Ohio river levee abandoned their hopes. The opened flood gates and the river poured over 10,000 acres of rich farm land.

Two families evacuated their homes in Vandenburg county. John F. Hull, county agent, said "many more" probably will have to leave before the river reaches its crest tomorrow or Friday.

Scores of families whose homes were swept away by the January inundation were still living in tent cities in Evansville, Madison, Aurora, Rockport, and other towns along the lower reaches of the Ohio. Farmers who had hoped to build new homes this spring despite unfavorable rains were cheered, however, by news that the Ohio may not surpass 38 feet. Previous predictions were 39 feet.

The Wabash river started falling at Terre Haute, but was still rising downstream. It was 19 inches over flood stage at Vincennes, 30 inches over flood level at Mt. Carmel, Ill.

The west fork of the White river was flooded from Elliston south, and inundated fields around Edwardsport and Petersburg.

Ginniss, Mrs. Dane Ellis, Mrs. Philip Gay and Mrs. William McGinniss. After dinner the guests returned to the hostess' home, where four tables were in progress. When scores were counted Mrs. Egbert Freshour was awarded the prize for high score and Mrs. Edward Artman second high and Mrs. J. P. Gardner won the traveling prize.

MCCARTHY ON DERBY

Clem McCarthy, turf expert and NBC sports commentator, will be the man at the microphone when the National Broadcasting company broadcasts its exclusive airing of the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, May 8.

McCarthy, radio's best-known turf broadcaster has described the running of America's racing classic for air listeners in all but two years since 1928, when he made his microphone debut. He went on the air to describe a Derby-running for the first time when an announcer scheduled to handle the event resigned after describing the first race of the day.

McCarthy has seen 25 Kentucky Derbies since his first in 1896.

Extra flavor will be added to the series of broadcasts planned for the Derby by a ten-minute talk from London by Lord Derby, England's foremost horseman, for whose family the greatest of English races was named, on Thursday, May 6. Lord Derby's talk will be one of six preliminary programs that will come to a climax with the broadcast of the spectacular race itself from the Churchill Downs course at Louisville.

Clem McCarthy and Lord Derby were associated with the 1930 race when the English nobleman came to America to witness the running of the Kentucky classic. McCarthy acted as spokesman for the newspapermen who welcomed Lord Derby at Quarantine. The twelfth Lord Derby created the world's most famous horse race at Epsom Downs in 1780.

Approximately 20 of the more than 100 three-year-olds nominated for the Derby will make up the field this year in the contest for a purse of $50,000.

ANN HARDING, DON AMECHE

When Ann Harding is a guest star on the premiere broadcast of a new hour on Sunday, May 9, she will play the lead in a scene from "The Guardsman" with Don Ameche, master of ceremonies of the program, in the role opposite her.

"The Guardsman", by Ferenc Molnar, was done on the stage in New York with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the starring roles. These two also did it in the movies.

This performance to be broadcast over the NBC red network at 7 p. m. (EST) is Don Ameche's first chance at a big dramatic role on the air.

Werner Janssen is the musical director of the new program and Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy the comedy features.

Recovery has its disadvantages. Railroad people are again baffled by the problem of finding new names for Pullman cars.

CATHOLICS WIN MEXICAN FIGHT

Law to Limit Number of Priests Turned Down By High Court

MEXICO CITY, May 5.—(UP)—Mexican Catholics won an important victory today in their drive to have laws limiting the number of priests declared unconstitutional.

The federal supreme court, in a 4 to 1 decision last night granted an injunction against operation of the anti-clerical law of the state of Chihuahua.

Legal experts said that if the Mexican Catholics could obtain four similar rulings the unconstitutionality of the anti-Catholic legislation would be established. Three priests, the Revs. Salvador Eranga, Manuel Deoses and Jose Ramos, appealed for the injunction to the supreme court, in the midst of an extremely tense situation in Chihuahua.

In April, 1936, a law reducing the number of priests permitted to officiate in the state from five to one was passed. Legislators sponsoring the law said it was necessary to combat subversive activi-

NEW DEAL AIDES
ARGUE OLD AGE
PENSIONS LAW

Hearing Scheduled Before
Supreme Court is Last
Case Before Recess

MANY MILLIONS INVOLVED

Many Changes Possible
Before New Term

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(UP)—The New Deal's legal defenders faced for perhaps the last time today the nine justices who now comprise the supreme court.

Before next fall—earliest time another New Deal case can come before the tribunal—changes by death, retirement or congressional enactment may have altered the court's membership.

Defense of the old age pensions provisions of the Social Security act today placed the last administration case of the term before the court. It also was the last argument the justices will hear before the court adjourns for the summer.

Today's argument involved a ruling of the first circuit court of appeals in Boston that old age pensions are unconstitutional.

The government hurriedly appealed that ruling and asked the supreme court to decide it this term. Federal attorneys pointed out that pensions for 26,000,000 workers were involved, as well as a tax of one percent on them and 2,700,000 employees.

With the unemployment insurance law test cases still awaiting the court's decision, the two major provisions of Social Security have become joined into the last consequential New Deal case of the term.

The possibility that one or more of the justices may resign at the end of the present term has been the subject of much speculation in Washington. It is customary—to avoid disturbing court procedure—for resigning justices to step down only during recess unless illness makes immediate resignation necessary.

Chicago's Municipal Scandals
Amaze Even the Reform Groups
But They Have No Leader

CHICAGO, May 5.—This dynamic city, whose boosters always have assumed that it had everything, finds itself baffled at last. Reform groups, desperately in need of a Moses to lead them from the political wilderness of the Kelly-Nash Democratic machine, find there is a shortage of bull rushes.

A succession of scandals arising in the past year and a half from the city hall and county building, citadel of the Kelly-Nash Democratic machine, has left the reform groups punch-drunk, and unable to muster an effective attack.

Republicans No Help

For the first time within memory, the convention "good government" groups have no opposition party to turn to. The Republican party still is listed in the telephone book, but Republicans out of work are just as ineffective as other people out of work. There are no more Republican offices left with which to keep the nucleus of an effective party.

A small group of political reformers, despite the heavy odds against them, nevertheless are trying to put over a city manager plan for Chicago, but no one seriously expects success within a predictable future.

Five city manager bills, sponsored by the Chicago City club, the Illinois Council-Manager conference, the Chicago City Manager committee, and other groups, are before the legislature in Springfield, becoming dog-eared.

At the most recent hearing on these bills, the house committee on municipalities could not produce a quorum, and recessed until early April to the disappointment of numerous proponents of the measures who had traveled to the capital at their own expense.

"To See Them Squirm"

One realist on the committee, Representative Arthur ("Prince Artie") Quinn, from Chicago's notorious Forty-second ward, commented cynically that some of the members of the committee were "embarrassed about their ability to face the issue". Quinn grinningly promised the disappointed witnesses that he would insist on the legislators attending the next committee meeting, "just to see them squirm".

The latest scandal to rise from the ranks of the county democracy is a jury fixing affair involving the two trials of Frank V. Zintak, former clerk of the superior court, who was accused of embezzling funds of that office. He made restitution of $23,000 before he came to trial. A jury disagreed on his guilt at the first trial, and acquitted him on a second.

Then, recently, Gustave Anderson, a juror in the first trial, complained that he had been promised money and a public job to tie up the first Zintak jury, and that the promise had not been kept.

Anderson named Robert McKinlay, a federal receiver and brother of Superior Court Judge Donald S. McKinlay, as the person who promised the bribe. McKinlay then was indicted on a charge of bribery and conspiracy to obstruct justice. He surrendered in criminal court, posted $5,000 bond and issued a statement declaring he was innocent.

Jury Visits Taverns

Investigators added to the commotion by disclosing, through evidence of jurors themselves, that the second Zintak jury, the one that acquitted the defendant, was taken on a round of taverns by their guards during their "deliberations".

Judge Benjamin Epstein of the criminal court, who presided at the second trial of Zintak, was so incensed at these disclosures that he declared himself unsatisfied with punishing the deputy sheriffs responsible for contempt only. He ordered Wilbert P. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, to prove through the criminal code to see whether some law carrying a server penalty than a contempt citation could not be found.

These engaging disclosures followed in the wake of many other scandals, the first of which was the case of Robert M. Sweitzer, who wound up his 24 years as county clerk slightly less than $500,000 short.

The county still is short. Sweitzer, removed from his job as county treasurer, was acquitted of an embezzlement charge. He asserted the shortage was a technical one, in the handling of vast sums. The office handles nearly $250,000,000 per year.

Political Groups Aid

As was later revealed, Superior Court Clerk Zintak was also suffering from shortages at the time of the Sweitzer revelations. These shortages were made up by contributions of political and racial groups, and remained a secret until the disclosures were made.

On the side lines, there have been a succession minor scandals, in which the public till suffered to the tune of about $100,000. These included such minor rackets as faking and cashing jury vouchers, swindling court clerks with faked court orders for funds in escrow, and plain everyday embezzlement by employees who played the horses.

A blind apple lady in the lobby of the city and county temple of government has placed a strong wire mesh over her basket.

Chicago is shaken by a charge of jury fixing in the first trial of Frank V. Zintak, former superior court clerk. The jury in the first trial was discharged following a 41-hour deadlock. In the second trial, Zintak was freed. Now, Gustave Anderson, shown left, being questioned by First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley, allegedly asserts that he received $23,000 and a promise of a job from Robert W. McKinlay, a federal court receiver. McKinlay thereupon was indicted for bribery and conspiracy.

CHICK CHATS

Nowadays most apples are packed and stored in bushel baskets, all fixed up with fancy paper "col-lars" so that they will attract the eye of the buyer in the market.

But I can remember when apples were packed in barrels for storage and shipment.

Maybe you will recall that children always wanted to get an apple from the top layer when the head of the barrel was knocked off. They thought it was good luck, and usually the apples on top were just about the biggest in the barrel.

In those days folk had the saying that you could find the reputation of a farmer at the top of the barrel, but when you got down to the middle of the barrel you really discovered his character.

Now that same thing is true of baby chicks, of chick and poultry feed, of poultry equipment and supplies, of all kinds. The important thing is to be sure that every investment you make to promote your own poultry project represents a product that is "good to the bottom of the barrel".

You can not really judge baby chicks by their appearance any more than you can judge a barrel of apples by the appearance of the top layer. The soundness of baby chicks depends on a great many things. They should come from well bred stock—stock with a good production history so that you will be sure of satisfactory egg production. The parent stock should be pullover tested so that you will avoid the serious danger of bacillary white diarrhea. These chicks should also come from a large type of stock so that they will live and lay better than the average.

When selecting a starting mash or any poultry feed, why don't you make sure that some of your neighbors and friends have also enjoyed success with this feed. It is a very simple matter to "check and double check" on the statement of any dealer. "It is better to be safe than sorry!" You can compare results. You can make sure that whatever feed you select is "good to the bottom of the bag".

An element of caution is an excellent thing in the selection of any poultry product! Approach the purchase of your baby chicks, your feed, your supplies as if you were "from Missouri". Insist that the dealer or hatcheryman or elevator or salesman not only demonstrate the value of his product to you, but also prove it by pointing to the success of other users and permitting you to check on that success.

STUDEBAKER'S C. I. T. BUDGET PLAN OFFERS LOW TIME PAYMENTS

G. L. SCHIEAR

115 WATT ST. PHONE 700

THE RAILROADS ARE THE NATION'S GREATEST CREATORS OF VALUES—

FOR the value of the products of American industry and agriculture depend upon efficient, adequate and economical transportation service. And the railroads alone provide that complete service.

Therefore, the railroad that serves your community makes the products of your mills, factories, mines and farms more valuable. It makes your home or property more valuable. It creates more business for your merchants, your banks, your insurance agents and real estate dealers. And, thus, it creates taxable values which provide the revenues that run your local government, that gives you better schools, better law enforcement, better parks and playgrounds.

Now look at the other side of the picture. What would happen if the railroad abandoned your community—ripped up its tracks, closed its freight and passenger stations? Down would go the value of your property; down would go the business of your merchants, your mills, your factories, your banks. (Many of them would be forced to close their doors.) Down would go employment. Down would go the revenues of your local government. Down would go your schools, your recreational facilities.

With decreased values, with your most essential transportation agency gone, with railroad taxes, railroad jobs, and railroad purchases gone, could your community maintain itself? Could you and your neighbors pay the increased taxes that would be necessary to operate your local government, your schools, your recreational facilities, and all the other institutions that are vital to the progress and well being of your community?

It is a matter of plain common sense that it is to your personal advantage, the advantage of your mills, factories, merchants, mines, farms and every other kind of business, to support and patronize your railroad. When you get ready to ship freight, or travel, remember these facts.

ANTIQUES
THE motivation of the American passion for antiques is doubtless varied. What is antique is supposed to be beautiful, rare, curious, or at least old. As far as importations are concerned it now appears that 75 percent of all antiques brought into the United States since 1906 were "fakes."

This is the shattering word that comes from the Treasury Department, which hereafter wants antiques removed from the free list and made dutiable. The value of the "fakes" imported since 1906 is estimated at $500,000,000. The chief producer of "fakes" is England and Mr. Morgenthau thinks that this foreign competition is injuring the domestic manufacturer. Government actuaries have made a cold examination of the population of England, the number of rich families, the square footage of English castles and other mathematical and social minutiae, and have figured out that not a tithe of the imports from the British Isles could be genuine.

Hundreds of thousands of Sheraton sideboards, Hepplewhite chairs and Chinese Chippendale mouldings will creak in protest, millions of Wedgewood plates will crack beneath the breakfast bacon and the varnish of an infinite number of Elizabethan ancestors will fall in fragments! But there is this consolation: All of us know our own antiques to be genuine; it is our gullible, uninformed neighbor who has purchased the "fakes."

FOR THEIR OWN SAFETY

THE type of highway accident most in the news now is not the one in which a pedestrian is the victim—though a fearful number of pedestrians are killed from week to week—but the one in which motorists are wiped out or mangled.

Each week-end considerable space in the news columns is devoted to accounts of persons smashed up in head-on collisions, or in encounters with roadside trees, or railroad trains, or in tumbles over hill and mountain sides.

Hundreds of people have died in such ways since the first of January and thousands have been hurt, largely because somebody else was reckless, criminally careless or drunk.

The biggest single trouble is excessive speed, especially at night.

When will motorists wake up to the fact that they must obey traffic regulations and the rule of reason and be satisfied with fewer miles per hour for their own sakes, to save their own lives?

Anthropologist has discovered a savage tribe that has never engaged in mortal combat. Now that the poor barbarians have been located, they'll soon be educated up to the standards of civilized warfare.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a cloudy morning, one of the kind of days that gets away to a bad start and gradually becomes more involved, everything going wrong. Off to the post and there being greeted by a shower of delayed open-faced communication. Methinks the government instead of deflating the dollar should do something to make it cover more territory. Mine seem to travel only the very briefest distance before growing leg weary. But then, I suppose one should be happy that one has any money at all; so many have none.

Sat in a brown study and watched a common laborer. Only apparent happiness there. That man has nothing and will end up with nothing, but is not worried over the situation. He works for a living and is content if he gets it. And then into the office walked a young man who was graduated from college a few years ago. All discontent, even though he is making three times as much money as the laborer. "I know it," he said, "but I have been educated to the finer things in life and can not have them, may never have them. About all I have gotten out of my college education so far is discontent. Really, I am educated to an income of at least $10,000 a year and I am making little more than a fifth of that. Sometimes when I look about me I am convinced that the less a man is educated the happier he is. The only really contented men I have met are the ones that never got beyond the fourth or fifth grade."

There goes Mrs. Walter Brown of Wayne township. A lamb on her farm was disowned by its mother and Mrs. Brown raised the little twin by hand. This Spring on the Brown farm five ewes gave birth to 13 lambs, five sets of twins and one of triplets. And that lamb that a couple of seasons ago was abandoned by its mother is the proud father of the group. So, even mothers sometimes fail to recognize talent.

In the paper did read a warning by Secretary Wallace against a speculative farm land boom and then on the radio heard an official calling attention to the fact that while stock values have more than doubled recently that farm lands have increased only slightly in value and that something should be done about the situation. Well?

Wonder what, if anything, will be done about collection of delinquent taxes in this county? The situation is little if any better than during the worst years of the depression despite the improvement in general conditions. Carlton S. Dargusch, the Ohio tax expert, says it is hard to visualize why there is not a greater improvement in the delinquent tax situation. The general position of county officials has been to oppose all legislation which seeks to enable the collection of delinquent taxes. Dargusch says he has failed to hear from the state organization of county officials, of which our own auditor is a prominent member, as much as one constructive suggestion along these lines and that their activity manifests itself on the other hand as opposing any constructive legislation. Local taxpayers should remember that no new permanent taxes of any kind should be imposed until the possibilities of collecting our present tax delinquency have been thoroughly exhausted.

McCARRAN SWINGS ON PETTY DEAL
WASHINGTON — Votes for the President's Supreme Court plan are turning on very petty political chicken-feed.

The Senator involved doesn't want it shouted from the housetops, but the reason Senator Pat McCarran turned against Roosevelt in the Senate Judiciary Committee discussion was the mere matter of a United States Marshal in Nevada.

McCarran had urged the appointment of his friend Harvey Dickerson of Carson City as U. S. Marshal. However, Senator Key Pittman also of Nevada, had urged the appointment of Frank L. Middleton of Elko.

Senator Pittman is a much more important fighter for the President's court plan than McCarran, and Middleton is getting the job. So McCarran came out against the plan.

"MARCHING THROUGH GEORGIA"

Some of the A. F. of L. master minds have a unique genius for pulling boners.

President Bill Green recently ordered the Georgia State Federation of Labor to oust Steve Nance, its president, and other officials with the C. I. O. affiliations. The state body refused, whereupon Green sent F. J. Dillon, a Northern organizer, to Atlanta to take charge.

Assigning Dillon to this job was extremely careless, since the insurgent Southerners immediately raised the cry of "carpet-bagger." But even this might have been forgotten if not for an ever more stupid blunder by Dillon.

After a few days, he buoyantly wired Green: "We are truly marching through Georgia with the A. F. of L. banner high."

"Marching through Georgia" is a fighting phrase in the South. It recalls General Sherman's terrible campaign when his Union army ravaged the State and broke the backbone of the Confederacy.

So when Green, with a recklessness that matched Dillon's, made public his telegram, the jubilant C. I. Oers printed it in leaflet form and distributed thousands among Southern workers.

NOTE—Dillon was the organizer hand-picked by Green several years ago for president of the A. F. of L. automobile union. After a few months the union kicked out Dillon and went over to the C. I. O.

TABOO

There is one subject which long-jawed John Hamilton, Republican National Chairman, will skirt very carefully in his four radio broadcasts.

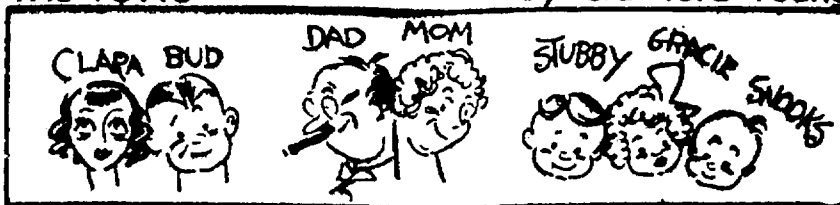

He will discuss relief, government reorganization, social security and taxation—all hot issues. But on the hottest of all, the GOP generalissimo will maintain a discreet silence.

Hamilton will say nothing about the Supreme Court issue.

This reticence is due to no lack of views or feeling on the matter. Hamilton would love nothing better than to tear into the President. It is only by heroic self-control that he is restraining himself.

Improvements in Field of Surgical Anesthesia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
MOST of the improvements in medicine in late years have consisted in perfection of methods of treatment already well established.

Most of the work is done quietly by technical workers, and while it does not receive the publicity that some so-called discoveries of new methods of treatment are accorded in the magazines and newspapers, it is really more lasting and important in its effect.

An instance is the chemical work that has been done in the production of new agents for surgical anesthesia. Unless you have visited a hospital lately as a patient, you are probably unaware of how many improvements have been made in this field.

Of course, in the beginning, less than a hundred years ago, when anesthesia for surgical operations had just been established, patients and surgeons were glad to get any relief from the sensations of pain. There seemed then to be the greatest possible boon. It is still used quite widely but has many disadvantages. One is that for most people it is an extremely uncomfortable sensation to "go under" ether. Dreams are disturbing, and the after-effects in the form of vomiting are quite uncomfortable.

The second agent to be used was chloroform, which was a more comfortable drug for the patient but carried a distinctly higher hazard of danger. The third was nitrous oxide, or laughing gas, which can only be used for short operations, and does not give sufficient muscular relaxation.

Search for Satisfactory Agent
You can see, as we recite these different steps, how men were trying to find an agent which would combine the elements of safety, comfort for the patient, and muscular relaxation which is necessary, especially for an abdominal operation.

The latest agent to be used is a substance called "cyclopropane." It is a colorless gas with hardly any odor. Patients who have taken it tell me that there is none of the frightening sensation that accompanies going under with ether. The patient suddenly "goes out like a light."

He wakes up almost immediately after the anesthesia has been stopped, and in almost most no instances there are any nausea or vomiting. One patient whom I saw recently asked for a cup of coffee within five minutes after awakening. It is also extremely safe. It can be used in practically all operations except those in which extreme muscular relaxation must be maintained.

Other new anesthetics are divinyl ether and evipan sodium. The professional anesthetist is today an extremely important consultant for the surgeon. He can select practically any form of anesthesia, can use those which are breathed in or given hypodermically or by numbing the spinal cord with direct introduction into the spinal canal. Whatever anesthetic is used in your next operation, you may be sure that it will have been carefully selected beforehand.

The MOUTHPIECE

CHAPTER 42
MR. JOPLIN produced a disheveled packet of cigarettes for Jacqueline, stared at it, and tossed it onto the table. The table was without a cloth, and the packet, slithering across its polished surface, shot over the edge and fell to the floor. Jacqueline was on the point of stooping to retrieve it when she checked herself. The table was between Mr. Joplin and the packet, and to reach it he would be obliged to move a couple of yards farther from the door. She would choose the moment when he was stooping.

"That's a nice way to offer a cigarette to a lady, I must say," said Mrs. Joplin. "You ought to know better, Alf. Pick 'em up an' offer 'em to 'er proper."

Her husband turned and stared at her; for a moment Jacqueline was afraid that he intended to refuse. She stood watching them as they faced each other, Alfred's face dogged and sullen, and Mrs. Joplin's extensive mouth set in a line of grim determination. But if Alfred possessed the bulging muscles, Mrs. Joplin, evidently, possessed the dominant will.

"Are you going to pick 'em up, Alf?" she demanded, with a hint of menace in her tone. "I'm telling you to pick 'em up, and one telling's enough, ain't it?"

Mr. Joplin's gaze wavered and fell.

"Ah!" he said, and slouched forward toward the floor.

Jacqueline waited, holding her breath, until he had rounded the table and was actually bending down and reaching for the packet. Then she suddenly turned, darted through the door and slammed it behind. She wasted a few precious seconds fumbling for the key, meaning to turn it in the lock. But there was no key, and as she turned away she heard Mrs. Joplin's "Alf—quick—she's 'opped it," and the sound of footsteps hurrying toward the door.

She ran toward the spot where she believed the stairs to be, found them, sped up them, tripped, and fell sprawling. She scrambled to her feet, heard Joplin's heavy footsteps behind her, and sped on.

She reached the top of the steps, felt a breeze against her cheek, and hesitated, glancing swiftly around. She realized that, as Mrs. Joplin had told her, she was on the river, black and oily-looking, with little splashes of light dancing on its surface, flowing past her on each side; red lights, green lights, yellow lights, the dim outlines of vessels, the shadowy roofs of buildings on the shore vaguely silhouetted against the sky. The buildings looked a very long way off, and the river seemed to be moving very swiftly.

She ran to the side, gave a hasty glance at the water below her, and poised herself for the jump. Then, just as her muscles tensed, a massive arm was flung round her waist and she was lifted off her feet. She struggled furiously, but the arm only tightened its hold so that she could scarcely breathe, and though she lashed out savagely with hands and feet, neither hand nor foot encountered anything solid, and she realized that she was being carried—by Mr. Joplin, presumably—tucked under his arm like a parcel, with her back pressed against his ribs.

He carried her down the steps and through the door and deposited her on the topmost bunk. Mrs. Joplin sat upright to find Mr. Joplin, with his arms folded across his bulging chest, and his jaw even more prominent than nature had fashioned it, staring at her sullenly. Mrs. Joplin also was surveying her with reproachful eyes.

"You didn't ought to 'ave done it," said Mrs. Joplin, shaking her head reprovingly. "There's no call for you to go doin' that sort of thing. It's ungrateful, dearie, an' me don't all I can to make you comfortable. Not as you aren't entitled to it, mind you. Five pounds a week is good money."

"Look here, Mrs. Joplin," interrupted Jacqueline angrily. "If you think I'm standing for this sort of thing, you're wrong. You've no earthly right to keep me here, and I don't intend to let you. I'm going to get out of this bunk now, and I'm going home, and if you try to stop me..."

"Not me, dearie," said Mrs. Joplin, and nodded toward her husband. "But 'e will. You'd soon stop 'er, wouldn't you, Alf?"

"Ah," said Alfred.

"You see, dearie, we've got our duty to do. Five pounds a week..."

"I don't care a hang about your duty," said Jacqueline. "And I don't care a hang if you're getting ten pounds a week. You're not going to keep me here against my will, and if Mr. Joplin dares to touch me again..."

"Now don't you start talking a nice sleep," advised Mrs. Joplin, that way, dearie," said Mrs. Joplin. "Alf don't like that sort of talk and you'll start 'im rampaging, and I don't want no more rampaging on this boat. The last time Alf got rampaging I hadn't got a single cup left at the end of it, nor a teapot, nor a plate. Them 'e didn't stamp on 'e shied overboard—didn't you, Alf?"

"Ah," Mr. Joplin passed his tongue across his lips as if relishing the memory of his last rampage.

"Just you take it quiet, dearie," advised Mrs. Joplin. "You act right by me and Alf, and we'll act right by you. You've got no sort of chance of gettin' away, anyow."

Jacqueline sat frowning thoughtfully for some moments. Mrs. Joplin, she was fully aware, was right. With Alfred Joplin as a watch dog, there was no possibility of her making her escape. Not by force, anyway, and the only thing to do at the moment was to accept the position as gracefully as possible and await her chance to take advantage of the slowness of Mr. Joplin's wits.

"All right, Mrs. Joplin," she said. "I won't give you any more trouble. It was silly of me; I suppose I lost my head. Besides, if Colonel Lutman is paying you five pounds a week—it is Colonel Lutman, isn't it?"

The woman's face assumed an expression of complete vacancy. "Colonel who?"

"Colonel Lutman. He's the gentleman who brought me here, isn't he?"

"Mrs. Joplin shook her head. "Never heard of 'im, dearie."

"Then who did bring me here?" Again Mrs. Joplin's head was shaken.

"No names, dearie," she smiled. "Inco, that's what the gentleman said. If he wasn't inco, 'e said, there'd be no five pounds, and Alf said if there was no five pounds 'e'd bash my face—didn't you, Alf?"

"Ah," agreed Alfred.

"Now just you lie down and have a nice sleep," advised Mrs. Joplin, "and don't worry your 'ead about nothing, and I'll bring you a nice cup o' tea in the morning." She went to the door and paused. "Come along, Alf. The lady wants to 'ave a sleep."

Alfred Joplin slowly turned and lumbered, with his arms still crossed on his chest, to the door. There he paused and for some moments stood staring at the girl seated on the bunk. Then, with great deliberation, he unfolded his arms, placed his enormous hands on his hips, thrust out his chin in Jacqueline's direction, and let out what for Alfred Joplin must have been an unprecedented stream of eloquence.

"That's 'nuff—see?" he growled. Then he lumbered out and closed the door behind him.

Kirkpatrick read a letter from a missionary in Japan, concerning mothers and daughters of that land. Miss Groce spoke on the Philippine mothers and daughters, and closed with a story, "The Light of the Grotto".

During the evening Miss Evelyn Pearce offered a violin solo, she was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. James Pearce. Miss Lucille Kirkwood sang a vocal solo.

Chicagoans Near Top of Ladder After Winning Four Games in Row

PARMELEE SEES SERVICE

19-Hit Barrage Assists in Phillie Victory

NEW YORK, May 5 — (UP) — The comeback of the Chicago Cubs was the talk of the National league today.

The Cubs have checked their early retreat and are making up lost ground with a typical Chicago winning streak. They lost six out of their first seven games, but today had a 4-game winning streak intact and although in sixth place, were only half a game out of first division.

All Catchers Out.

Four straight by the Cubs isn't remarkable in itself. The miraculous part of it is they are climbing with seven players — six of them regulars — on the hospital list. The Cubs have had enough tough breaks to wreck any ordinary team. Three regular pitchers, French, C. Davis and Carleton, are out. The two first string catchers, Hartnett and O'Dea, are ailing. Second Baseman Billy Herman is injured. The seventh casualty is third-string catcher Garbark.

Parmelee on Hill

The Cubs spotted the Phillies a three run lead yesterday and came on to win, 14-7. Roy Parmelee won his second victory for the Cubs after having rapped for 13 hits. The Cubs laid down a 19-hit barrage on Mulcahy, Burke, Sives and Kelleher, including homers by Collins, Marty and Bottarini. The Cubs have made 36 runs in their last four games, averaging nine runs a game, and lead the league in runs with 63 in 11 games.

YESTERDAY'S HERO — King Carl Hubbell who became the third pitcher in National league history to win 19 straight games (16 last year and three this year) although he had to see his triumph from the clubhouse after the Reds routed him in the seventh.

Tiger Tracksters Lose To Chillicothe Team

Circleville lost a track meet at Chillicothe, Tuesday afternoon, to the Red Devils of the Ross county school. The score was 45 to 31, and despite the almost doubled score, the Tigers looked pretty good.

The feature, from the Circleville standpoint, was the work of Kenny "Stringbean" Smith in the half mile, which he won with a time of 2 minutes 11 seconds. He trailed Jacques Cox, big Chillicothean, nearly 50 yards at one time, but closed the gap to pass Cox at the tape. The race brought cheers from the crowd that attended the competition.

CINCINNATI HITS MIGHTY HUBBELL BUT LOSES GAME

NEW YORK, May 5 — (UP) — The hapless Cincinnati Reds today tried to glean a bit of satisfaction from their feat of blasting Carl Hubbell out of the box for the first time since the great southpaw of the New York Giants started an amazing string of victories that now has reached 19 against National league foes.

The Reds spotted the great Hubbell a seven run lead here yesterday as they opened an invasion of the east and then hammered at his offerings with such consistency that he was removed with two out in the sixth. Harry Cumbert came in as a relief hurler and stopped the Reds rally and enabled the New Yorkers to win 7 to 6.

Hubbell bowed to a National league team for the last time on July 13, 1936 when the Chicago Cubs downed him 1 to 0. Since then he has gone the route in 17 of the 19 games he has won. On both occasions it was the Reds who knocked him from the hill. Paul Derringer, the leading pitcher on the Reds' staff last season, was Cincinnati's starting pitcher, but the big right-hander wasn't much of a puzzle to the Giants.

Mykrantz Team Captain Six Pins Short of Perfection

F. MARION COUNTS 113

Many Participating in C.A.C. Tourney

Lou Vining, ace of the Mykrantz bowling team, snatched a brilliant 114 score, Tuesday evening, in the Circleville Athletic Club's head-pin tournament to take the undisputed lead.

The 114 chalked up by Vining, whose average was highest in the City league, is only six pins short of perfect.

At the same time that Vining was marking up his big score, Frank Marion, member of the Gas Co. Industrial loop team, rolled 113, one pin behind the leader.

Three bowlers are tied for third with 111. They are N. Hitchcock, N. Crites and A. Geeting, the latter two kiegles from Stoutsville.

Scores rolled Tuesday evening include Vining's 114, Marion's 113, J. Glitt, 95, 95, 103, 79, 94; L. Gordon, 71, 104; N. Groban, 84, 98; W. Baker, 103, 86; R. Beatty, 97; Rose, 79, 86, 50; Geeting, 81, 80, 91; Lemon, 53, 105, 104.

The pot to be divided among the leaders is gradually increasing in size.

About This And That In Many Sports

Collins's Horses Winners at Downs

I. J. "Ike" Collins, Lancaster industrialist, goes in for racing in a big way--At Churchill Downs, Tuesday, Collins had starters in four events and three of the entries finished in the money--In the first race, Debate was out of the running, coming in fifth--In the fourth, Erin's Son came in second to pay a long price; in the fifth, the feature, Bernard F. came in third, trailing Dellor and Reaping Reward, both Derby nominees--Bernard F. returned $23.80--Bushmaster, another Collins horse, knocked off second money in the eighth and final event, running behind First Pigeon. . . . Washington C. H. baseball players enjoyed their game against the Red and Black the other day--Here's what the home town paper said about it: "It was a lot of fun, while it lasted--The Circleville Tigers lost their voice, their growl, and their hide as the Washington C. H. Lions marked up a 23-4 victory--Witherspoon started out the game, but the Lions didn't need him, so the eighth grade's pride, Sexton, finished on the hilltop--More and more are baseball experts rallying in the side of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National league race--Johnny Dickshot and Lee Handley, outfielder and infielder, respectively, are furnishing a lot of surprises for National top fans with their great ball--The Yankees had a field day Tuesday against the Tigers with El Gomez slanting the apple through the ozone. . . . The Cleveland Indians played some terrible ball in the eleventh inning of their game with the Washington Senators, Tuesday--Going into the fray tied at five, the Indians used three alleged pitchers, Fisher, Hudlin and Wyatt, permitted Washington to pull a triple steal with the bags loaded, and finished behind the well-known 8-ball in a 12-5 count. . . . Some of the smart people are putting their simoleons on Melodist in the Derby--Other smart people are not putting their money on any animal, so what? . . .

SOFTBALL LOOP GAME DELAYED BY STEADY RAIN

Kingston Athletic Club and Sohio gasoline ball players will tangle tonight in a Tri-County softball league contest, providing rain that forced postponement of Tuesday's game does not interfere again.

The personnel of the Kingston team has not been announced, and neither has that of the Sohio outfit, although Purcell and Leasure are the gasoline boys' hurlers. The Container Corporation-Circleville Oil Co. game called off Tuesday, will be played Friday evening.

Thursday will find the Williams Grocers, of Commercial Point, and the Coca Colas in action.

Four hearts was the final contract on this deal, which came up in a rubber game, after an opening bid of 1-Heart by South, 1-No Trump by North, 2-Hearts by South and 4-Hearts by North. The opening lead against the contract was the diamond 2, which South won with the diamond Ace. The heart Ace was laid down, on which West's heart J fell. The declarer now played the heart K, hoping West held the heart Q, but when it was disclosed that East held the remaining trumps, the contract was set with the loss of 2 trumps, 1 diamond and 1 club.

DUKE INFORMED OF DECISION TO SETTLE BIG SUM

as "asinine." This was one circulated abroad that the Duke and Mrs. Simpson had quarreled because she wanted to live in the United States and he wanted to live in Austria.

"It's silly gossip and wholly unfounded," Rogers said.

An American professor and his wife from Columbus, Ohio—they refused to give their names—stopped on their bicycle tour of Europe today to join newspaper men at Roger's press conference outside the chateau gates.

To Play Golf

After spending some time telephoning, the duke arranged for a walk in the chateau park with Mrs. Simpson and invited her to golf on the private course this afternoon.

Points to be settled by the duke and Mrs. Simpson are, first, the exact day of the wedding, secondly whether it shall be held in the great library of the Chateau de Candé where the duke and his fiancée are staying, thirdly what guests there shall be.

An alternative to marriage in the library, with Dr. Charles Mercier, mayor and physician of Monts, officiating, was a ceremony at the British consulate at Tours, 10 miles away.

As to guests, it was regarded as almost certain that the duke's youngest, favorite brother, the Duke of Kent, would attend and act as best man, bringing with him his duchess, the former Princess Marina of Greece. The duke and duchess alone of the British royal family showed sympathy with Edward when he determined to abdicate rather than give up Mrs. Simpson. Lady Mendl—Elsie De Wolfe, of New York—and possibly Alfred Duff Cooper, British war minister, and his wife, Lady Diana Duff Cooper, may attend.

Honeymoon Discussed

Honeymoon plans for the duke and Mrs. Simpson also are to be discussed. The duke has leased Wasserlemburg castle, in lower Austria, for the summer, and they are expected to spend a good deal of time there, with excursions to Italy and to the Adriatic coast of Yugoslavia.

The weather at Monts today was cloudy and chilly. The people at the chateau—the Duke and Mrs. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Beaudaux, the host and hostess; Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers of New York who were Mrs. Simpson's hosts at Cannes; Capt. Walter D. C. Greenacre, the duke's equerry, and detective Inspector David Storer of Scotland Yard, slept late.

Rogers, as Mrs. Simpson's official spokesman here, emphasized that stories published abroad of "movie-like emotion, tender clasping were wholly bunk."

ing strike-breakers to the studios. The Iatse also is an A. F. of L. affiliate.

Work continued on all 50 movie sets where pictures are under production, and actors passed unmolested through the picket lines. The Screen Actors Guild, a union of 5,500 players including nearly all the high-salaried stars, was conferring with producers on demands of its own, however, and was threatening to call for a strike vote unless the demands were met. The guild is sympathetic toward the striking federation units and is considering a plan to affiliate with them.

Entry of the C. I. O. into the strike came as discord was spreading among the 11 unions that called the strike.

Producers Meet

Meanwhile, the Screen Actors Guild met with producers. Strikers hoped for support from the actors which could paralyze the industry. The actors demand better salaries and working conditions for extras and bit players. Robert Montgomery, guild president, and Franchot Tone, signed a statement after last night's meeting announcing that "progress was made toward an agreement as to basic principle."

DENHARDT

ther the pretty widow died of suicide or murder.

Both sides agreed that an intermediate verdict of manslaughter scarcely would tell the story of that mysterious night. Manslaughter instructions were included in Judge Marshall's charge to the jury, counsel agreed, because of prosecution evidence that a struggle may have preceded the killing of Mrs. Taylor. The evidence was a bruise upon her inner thigh and heel prints in the soft mud of the ditch.

Denhardt, worn by the long trial, chatted last night through the narrow window of his cell. He talked with his lawyers and his invalid sister, Bertha, and for a short time gave way again to the tears which overcame him as John Marshall Berry, his defense counsel, gave an emotional closing argument to the jury.

"The people around here don't like me," he said. "They want to see me done for."

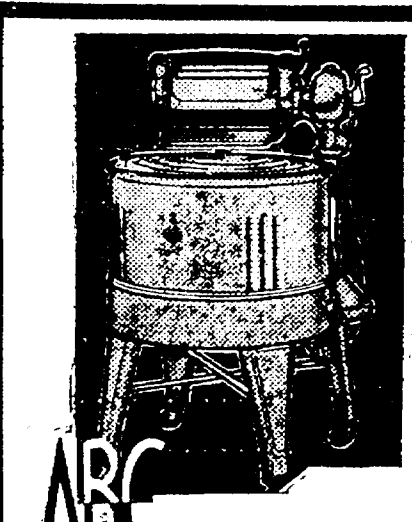

Yet Dad can remember when there was no excitement after dark except a moth inside the lamp chimney.
